A, MISERIES OF MOSQUITO LAKE.-A correspondent-one of a party engaged in correcting the Northwest boundary line, who has just returned to Washington, gives his experience of the mosquitoes and sand flies encountered on Columbia river.

It was during our third week that calamities began to be frightful. The increase of our enemies (mosquitoes) in both size and number was incredible. Larger, rounder, and fatter than any mosquito of the civilized world-full of blood—his probosis a syphon through which he injected poison even while he drew out contents of veins and arteries-the Sumass monsters came upon us, like the plague of flies in Egypt, in grievous swarms. They hovered over us like a cloud. No fog of Loudon 'blacks' ever enveloped men more closely. Night and day their hum filled the air. No shelter, no clothing protected the skin from their envenomed thrusts.

We ate them, drank them, inhaled them .-Most of our corps wore leathern trowsers and shirts, but their sharp proboscides would pierce the thickest bosses. We were obliged to cease all work. With strings tied around our pantaloons at the ankle, coat-sleeves closed tightly at the wrists, hands bagged in mittens, feet covered with shooting-boots, and heads masked in nets of gause, we did indeed for a day or two make an effort to proceed with our labors. It was in vain. Huge blotches covered our bodies from head to foot. Ears, eyelids, and checks were swollen in frightful masses. The pain of perpetual lancet thrusts was hard enough to bear, but the unnecessary itching of pustular, vesicular, intermixed and alternating pimples, inflamed to pustules, was intolerable

Stopped in the very beginning of an important undertaking by what we know would appear a trivial hindrance to our employers, and having at stake characters as well as wages, we and recourse to every possible contrivance for relief. Huge fires were kept burning around us day and night. Smoke from tobacco-pipes enveloped us as we crouched under extemporized bowers made from twigs and branches. Blankets and buffalo robes, mild as the weather was, carefully drawn over every part of our bodies. We fumigated our tents with oak-bark smoke to just within the possibility of respiration; rubbed arms, legs, and faces with camphuretted spirits; made noisome smells from assafcetida and other rosius to a point that would almost stifle any mortal thing-but all was useless. The ruffians were neither deterred nor cowed, and to our horror increased in numbers in geometrical ratio. No amount of ingenuity enabled us to eat; no fatigue brought sleep; no fear of disgrace nor hope of reward gave courage enough for work. In fact, it is impossible to form the faintest idea of our tortures without enduring them.

Endurance failed at last. We gave up in despair. Packing our kits of clothing, tools, and equipage we started for the slopes drained by the Columbia River. To escape from malaria or famine, the tomahawk of the savage or the claws of the grizzly, are events to be thankful for and why not from mosquitoes? The bear and Indian murder you at once, indeed; but the mosquito produces an equally fated result by prolonging torture. - Petersburg Index.

HORACE GREELEY is neither to be coaxed nor intimidated. He is bent-wicked people would say "hell-bent" -- on the Presidency, and Grant's organ cannot turn him aside. He is daily addressing acres of Western farmers, making friends by thousands and tens of thousands, and shaking the hands of his admirers until his own hand is sore and swollen. An enthusiastic correspondent of the New York Sun says that when Mr. Greeley entered the fair grounds at Minneapolis, Minn., "he was followed by a great multitude."

"Men of all kinds and conditions followed in his footsteps. Farmers with homespun suits, and workingmen of all classes in their holiday suits, eagerly ran after him. They took hold of his great white coat and crowded him. They spoke to him, and we might almost say, kissed the hem of his garments.'

When Mr. Greeley rose to speak, the scene is thus described by the reporter: "A shout from twenty thousand throats that made the very welkin ring greeted Mr. Greeley as he slowly arose from his seat and faced the multitude. He wore the great white coat, and held a silk handkerchief in his hand. Somebody in the vegetable department had given Mr. Greeley a four pound potatoe, and this he had thrust into the pocket of the overcoat. When he arose in the carriage, one end of the potatoe protruded from the pocket at least four inches, and when the immense crowd saw this, they burst out into renewed cheers.

The philosopher removed his hat and bowed again amid deafening cheers. Men threw their hats into the air and women waved their handkerchiefs. I have never seen so excited a multitude. "Greeley! Greeley! Greeley!" they shouted. "Greeley for President! Greeley, the Minnesota farmers' candidate. Down with Grant and up with Greeley, and the old man knows how to farm. Hurrah for the great editor!" and all such expressions. Mr. Greeley was much moved by all this praise. The old fellow seems to be stirring up the West. If he keeps on at this rate he will produce such a scare at Washington that the Ku-Klux law will at once be most rigidly enforced and martial law proclaimed.—Richmond Whig.

A LAWYER ASTOUNDED. - A few days ago a prominent lawyer of St. Louis missed his free pass on the city railroad of that city, and suspecting that it had been stolen, he went to the office of the Railroad Company, informed the officials of his suspicions and requested them to have any one who should present the passon the street cars arrested. Orders were accordingly issued to all the conductors on the line to keep a sharp lookout for the missing ticket. A couple of days afterward, while searching through some papers in his office, the legal gentleman found the missing ticket, and while riding home on a car presented it to the conductor, who examined it closely. He immediately collard the astounded member of the bar, and in reply to a question as to what he meant by seizing him, remarked that he had been looking for the man who had stolen that ticket for some days past. In vain the legal gentleman endeavored to explain that he was the rightful owner of the pass; the conductor would not believe him. He said he had seen a good deal of human nature, and knew an honest man when he met him. On the return trip he brought his prisoner back with him and took him to the police station, where he was recognized and released.

THE FOLLOWING WILL BE READ ▲ WITH INTEREST: Under date of April 26th, 1871, Dr. HENRY J. ROGERS, 68 Sharp street, Baltimore, an em#### inent physician, writes regarding CRYSTAL DISCOVERY:

"It affords me much pleasure to bear testimony as to the efficacy of your Crystal Discovery. Some years since, while in India, I suffered from a severe fever peculiar to the country. On my recovering, a patch of hair on the left side of my head became perfectly white, without at all affecting the remainder. To remove this unsightly appearance, I had recourse to various preparations, both in Europe and in this country; but they all had appearance defect they also the they all had one great defect—they dyed the hair black. Now, with your Crystal Discovery, I can get the desired shade—the natural color of my hair being dark brown. I consider your Discovery the best preparation I know of.

Yours truly, HENRY J. ROGERS.

Now as the fact becomes more patent every day that the various dirty and filthy preparations advertised as Renewers, Restoratives, &c., are but compounds of Sugar of Lead and Sulphur, and therefore should be shunned by all who value their health, it is scarcely a matter of surprise that the demand for NATTANS CRYS TAL DISCOVERY, admitted to be perfectly harmless, and yet accomplish all, and more, than the poisonous articles claim to do, should have increased so rapidly. It restores the color and growth of the hair positively in a few days; strengthens the roots, makes an excellent dressing, soiling neither clothes nor scalp; but on the contrary it gives the scalp a pure and cleanly look, removing all dandruff and scurf. It is the most economical preparation in use. Put up in large bottles, at one dollar.
